

Abstract

The present invention is directed to a system, components of the system, a method and components of the method for collecting, disseminating and managing information between a data/voice base network and an end user or system. The present invention comprising: (1) an end user device; (2) a device adapter; (3) management surface interface; (4) a series of programmable tools capable of carrying out a desired function; and (5) an information source. The present invention being adaptable to collect, disseminate and manage information relating to public health, financing, banking, E-government, commercial sales, commercial distribution, and others.

106030/292260